

RISING

The smoke believes itself a cloud
so it rises,
schooled in billowing, attuned to the beauty of occlusion and shade, conundrums and accumulation, without awareness of the coalescing storm soon to extinguish its ancestral fire.

— Richard Hoffman

Reprinted with the author's permission.
From Emblem by Richard Hoffman, published by Barrow Street Press.

POETRY
POETRY ON THE T

 Mass Poetry
EVENTS | OUTREACH | MASSPOETRY.ORG

Mass Poetry's Largest Programs:
The Massachusetts Poetry Festival
Student Day of Poetry, Statewide & In-School
Poetry in Public Spaces, Hear Here & Poetry On the T
U35 Reading Series, for poets under 35

Join our mailing list and more at www.masspoetry.org

/MassPoetry

